

Can I let a family member or friend move in with me?

Only the individuals approved by the Housing Authority as "household members" can reside in the unit. If you want to add someone to the household, you must request permission and get approval from the owner AND the Housing Authority before allowing the person to move into the unit.

The Housing Authority must allow the addition to the approved household in the case of birth, adoption, marriage or court order (subject to a criminal background clearance). All other requests are subject to review by the Housing Authority and may be approved or denied. NOTE: Before the individual is allowed to move in, the family must obtain written approval from the landlord.